

Sovah residency leaders and faculty members are hands-on, experienced, clinically active, osteopathic and allopathic physicians who are committed to providing the best possible learning experience for residents. The faculty strives to provide a patient-centric, evidence-based medicine experience. Residents are given primary patient care responsibility with faculty supervision, instruction, and mentoring.

Each of the core faculty has a different style of teaching, but they all promote education, efficiency, and growth in the residents. We're very fortunate to have this team.

Our faculty are awesome doctors. They not only teach us medicine, but they also teach us how to manage difficult social situations. Our team often discusses the demands of medicine and talk through issues with difficult patients and families. I appreciate their dedication to us and to this hospital.
